Dear Families:

As the excitement builds about the move to our new school, I'm writing to share an update.

The construction company expects occupancy permits later this month. In anticipation of that, we are proceeding with plans to move to our new school over winter break.

As you can imagine, the transition into a new school building involves many moving parts, and as such, please plan for changes to students' routines during the first days back. We're planning for all classes to learn remotely on both January 8 and January 9. Your child's teacher will reach out about the specifics regarding remote learning for their class. Additionally, students should also expect to be scheduled for an orientation about the new building on January 9. Details regarding orientation times will be shared before school resumes after winter break.

I appreciate that this disruption to normal routines is not easy for students and families, and I thank you for your patience and support throughout this project.

I remain committed to keeping you informed as we near the much-anticipated finish line on this project. Like you, I am looking forward to seeing our school community settled in our state-of-the-art new school.

Please feel free to contact me if you any questions or concerns.

Sincerely,

Curtis Hodgson
Principal, Burnaby North Secondary
